July 2018

Housing price bubble chatter has increased this summer, as market observers attempt to predict the next residential real estate shift. It is too early to predict a change from higher prices and lower inventory, but the common markers that caused the last housing cooldown are present. Wages are up but not at the same pace as home prices, leading to the kind of affordability concerns that can cause fewer sales at lower prices. At the same time, demand is still outpacing what is available for sale in many markets.

New Listings increased 12.8 percent for Single Family homes but decreased 2.7 percent for Condominium homes. Pending Sales increased 15.9 percent for Single Family homes and 7.9 percent for Condominium homes. Inventory decreased 14.4 percent for Single Family homes and 22.8 percent for Condominium homes.

Median Sales Price increased 9.7 percent to $769,000 for Single Family homes and 16.6 percent to $513,163 for Condominium homes. Days on Market increased 24.2 percent for Single Family homes and 10.5 percent for Condominium homes. Months Supply of Inventory decreased 12.9 percent for Single Family homes and 32.8 percent for Condominium homes.

Consumer spending on home goods and renovations are up, and more people are entering the workforce. Employed people spending money is good for the housing market. Meanwhile, GDP growth was 4.1% in the second quarter, the strongest showing since 2014. Housing starts are down, but that is more reflective of low supply than anything else. With a growing economy, solid lending practices and the potential for improved inventory from new listing and building activity, market balance is more likely than a bubble.
